“When I entered the Calorx School for the first time, I was struck by the beautiful and harmonious campus and by the warm welcome of the administration and teachers of the school. They made me feel as a part of the school from the very first moment in a way that I haven’t experienced in any other school before. During my interaction with the students themselves, I was very impressed by the well-founded and knowledgeable answers they gave to my questions, their attitude, their critical thinking and interest towards the environment and global issues and their welcoming and kind manners. It will be a pleasure and honour to work with this school in the future and I consider the school a role model for the education of the future generation of young leaders for our world.”
